

Figure 1: Classification framework. The mean of the alpha power distribution obtained from the data of 96 randomly chosen participants was calculated, separately for each channel. Then the deviations from this mean value for the rest of the participants were used to classify them as healthy or epilepsy, and the epilepsy patients were further classified for the epileptic side of brain. The predictions were compared against ground truth to evaluate the classification performance.