

Figure 1. Ultrasound imaging in the sagittal plane before voiding (A) and after voiding (B) demonstrate a tubular cystic mass posterior to the uterus. This is correlated with intraoperative images of the right hydrosalpinx twisted several times around its pedicle (C), better visualized after partial de-torsion (D).

