[^] Graduate researchers are expected to have their candidature confirmed within the first third of their degree.

[~] This date is the current thesis due date, and if it is less than the maximum submission date then the student is eligible to apply for an extension.

⁺ Most thesis examinations will be completed within nine months. The average examination period is six months from thesis submission.

^{*} EFTSL is the measure of equivalent full-time study load per year. 100 points (1 EFTSL) typically represents a full-time study load for one year.

[#] Part time study rate is always half (0.5) the full time (1.0) rate for graduate research. The load category is printed as per the date of document creation.
