

Table 2: Select Survey Results

Question	N = 29 <sup>1</sup>
Do your progress notes have more than one contributing author?
Yes	12 (41%)
No	9 (31%)
Sometimes	8 (28%)
Who is the primary contributor to the daily progress notes in your NICU (who starts the progress note)?
Attending Neonatologist	2 (17%)
Neonatal APP (PA or NNP)	7 (58%)
Other (trainee, etc)	3 (25%)
In your opinion, who should be primarily responsible for the NICU daily progress note?
Attending Neonatologist	22 (76%)
Neonatal APP (PA or NNP)	6 (21%)
Resident Physician	1 (3.4%)
What format is utilized for the assessment and plan section of your daily progress note?
Systems Based	17 (59%)
Problem Based	12 (41%)
What format do you believe should be utilized for the assessment and plan section of the daily progress note?
Systems Based	13 (45%)
Problem Based	16 (55%)
Does your NICU group use a standard daily progress note documentation template?
Yes, all providers use the same template	24 (83%)
No, different providers can use different templates	5 (17%)
Is the "copy forward" feature for the daily progress note available for use?
Yes	26 (90%)
How often do you spend time after providing sign out to the next shift writing your notes?
Always/Very Often	3 (10%)
Sometimes	9 (31%)
Rarely/Never	17 (58%)
How often do you complete notes during rounds?
Always/Very Often	16 (55%)
Sometimes	4 (14%)
Rarely/Never	9 (31%)
How often does documentation significantly impact time spent doing other important tasks
Always/Very Often	16 (55%)
Sometimes	7 (24%)
Rarely/Never	6 (21%)
On most days, how much time do you feel you spend on documentation?
Too much time	13 (45%)
About right	16 (55%)
Not enough time	0 (0%)

<sup>1</sup>n (%)